

GREEN PLANT ACADEMY

BACKED BY LYNCH

The Green Plant Academy continues to make a meaningful contribution to addressing the construction skills shortage.

London's first dedicated green plant training centre has now been operational for some time and is already demonstrating its value to the industry.

Established in partnership with The Skills Centre, and backed by Lynch alongside leading industry organisations including Sunbelt Rentals, Inc., JCB, Places for London and CITB, the Academy was created to deliver practical, accredited training aligned to modern site requirements and future industry demand.

With programmes now well underway, local people are developing the skills and behaviours needed to operate low. emission plant safely and effectively. At a time when the UK requires approximately 45,000 new plant operators each year, sustained initiatives such as this are essential in strengthening the industry's long term capability.

By combining green technology, high quality training and clear employment pathways, the Green Plant Academy is helping to build a skilled workforce equipped for the demands of tomorrow's infrastructure projects.
